LONG RUNS ON THE LONDON STAGE

BY JOHN PARKER

THE long "run," by which most plays are usually remembered by playgoers and others, is of comparatively modern growth. Prior to the year 1822, no play had ever obtained a run of 100 nights (matinées only date back some eighty years), and it was not until the advent of the comic drama entitled "Tom and Jerry," founded on some sketches of London Life by Pierce Egan, that any production achieved that distinction.

Of course, the restricted field was mainly responsible for the frequent change of attraction which was necessary, and the Patent Theatres, Drury Lane and Covent Garden, mainly relied on Shakespeare and the old dramatists. Between seasons, from July to October, the Haymarket, which was then permitted to be open, would rely chiefly on similar attractions.

The first production to obtain a run of over fifty nights, was the famous comic opera, "The Beggar's Opera," written by Gay and Linley, produced at Lincoln's Inn Fields Theatre in 1728, and which was performed sixty-two times successively (except for benefit performances). This record stood for nearly a century. Then, nearly two hundred years later, the opera was revived at the Lyric, Hammersmith, and achieved the remarkable run of 1,463 performances.

As has been stated, the first play to achieve the notoriety of being performed 100 successive nights was "Tom and Jerry." The first version of this piece was produced at the Olympic Theatre, on 12th November, 1821, under the title of the original book, "Life in London," and this version held its place in the bills until 5th January of the following year. But it was the version, written by W. T. Moncrieff, produced under the book's sub-title of "Tom and Jerry," at the Adelphi on 26th November, 1821, that first secured the honour of being performed 100 times. The piece was played continuously until 30th March, 1822. It was revived on 7th October, 1822, and again ran until 4th January, 1823, when it gave place to what might be termed a sequel, entitled "Green in France; or Tom and Jerry's Tour," which remained in the programme from 6th January until 22nd March, 1823.

The Olympic version was also revived (this time under the title of "Tom and Jerry") on 28th October, 1822, and ran until 4th January following.

So successful was the piece that imitators sprang up on all sides, and versions were performed at the Royalty, Surrey, Sadler's Wells, Coburg, and Astley's Theatres. Indeed, at one period, in 1822, no fewer than ten theatres, in and around London, were playing "Tom and Jerry." In later years, it even succeeded in penetrating the precincts of Drury Lane and Covent Garden.

The next play to secure a run of 100 nights was a nautical melodrama written by W. Bayle Bernard, entitled "Casco Bay," produced at the Olympic Theatre, on 3rd Dec., 1827, which was played 140 times, but, somehow or other, never seems to have been revived. The author was then but 20 years of age.

"Black Eye'd Susan," by Douglas Jerrold, was the next play to create a furore, and the original version, produced at the Surrey Theatre on 8th June, 1829, was played no fewer than 150 nights. Its success was phenomenal, so much so, that it was secured for representation at Covent Garden, and the famous T. P. Cooke was engaged to play his original part there. As a matter of record, it may be stated that here, for the first time, we had the comparatively recent revived idea of playing a drama twice nightly, for Cooke used to play William at Covent Garden to the Susan of Ellen Tree (who subsequently became Mrs. Charles Kean), and then return to the Surrey to play the lover to the Susan of Miss Scott.

"Jonathan Bradford," another famous melodrama, also produced at the Surrey, on 12th June, 1833, the work of Edward Fitzball, was performed 161 times in succession, was revived several times, and held the stage for many years.

In 1843, with the passing of the Theatres Act, new plays became more numerous, and one of the earliest to attain the coveted 100 nights was a spectacular production at Astley's Amphitheatre, entitled " The War in China," produced on 27 May, 1844, and performed 114 times. Then came a dramatised version of Charles Dickens's " Martin Chuzzlewit," by Edward Stirling, produced at the Lyceum, 8th July, 1844, and performed 105 times. Then followed " The Island of Jewels," an extravaganza, at the Lyceum (26th December, 1849), with 111 performances; " The Court Beauties," a comedy, at the same theatre (9th June, 1851), 104 times; a revival of " King Charming," extravaganza, at the same theatre, on the same date, 109 times; " Uncle Tom's Cabin," a version of the famous work of Harriet Beecher-Stowe, at the Victoria (20 Sept., 1852), 111 times; " The Chase," an equestrian drama, at Astley's (16th May, 1853), 104 times; " The Battle of Waterloo," a revival at Astley's (18 June, 1853), 110 times; and " The Camp at Chobham," a farcical play, at the Adelphi (30th June, 1853), 143 times.

The first Shakespearean play to secure a run of 100 nights was Charles Kean's production of " King Henry VIII," at the Princess's, on 16th May, 1855. Played 100 times to the end of the season, 14th September, it opened the next season on 22nd October and ran another 50 nights. This record stood for many years, although an equestrian version of " Richard III," produced at Astley's, 2 Sept., 1856, was played 110 times.

The modern " long runs " may be said to have commenced with the production of Dion Boucicault's famous drama, " The Colleen Bawn," produced at the Adelphi, on 10th September, 1860, and played for 165 successive nights. Revived on 29th Apr., 1861, it was played 66 times; again revived on 23rd Sept., 1861, it ran a further 93 times, and still again revived on 23rd June, 1862, achieved a further 90 performances. It was, in addition, played simultaneously, at many other theatres. Then came " Peep o' Day," a clever drama by the erratic Edmund Falconer, produced at the Lyceum on 9th November, 1861, with Hermann Vezin in the leading part, and which was performed 346 times in succession.

Curiously enough, two days later, " Our American Cousin," by Tom Taylor, which was to give E. A. Sothern's Dundreary, such undying fame, was produced at the Haymarket. Its first run reached only 36 performances, ending 21st Dec., 1861, but revived on 27th Jan., 1862, it ran uninterruptedly until 23rd Dec., 1862, or 314 successive performances. Since that date nearly 2,000 productions have passed the coveted "100th performance," and the list will be found attached. It has been a laborious compilation, but it may prove of some interest as a record.

The first play to secure a run of 500 successive performances was " Our Boys," and although surpassed by the number of performances of "Blithe Spirit," "Worm's Eye View," "Me and My Girl," and "Charley's Aunt," the famous old comedy held the time-record of four years and three months' continuous performances, for over forty years, when this and all other records were passed by Mr. Oscar Asche's production of "Chu-Chin-Chow."

No other play, on the London Stage, came within measurable distance of the extraordinary run of this piece, which was performed 2,238 times, until twenty-five years later, "Blithe Spirit," Mr. Noel Coward's comedy, achieved a run of 1,997 performances.

"Worm's Eye View," a comedy by R. F. Delderfield, was originally produced at the Whitehall Theatre on 18th December, 1945, and ran until 1st March, 1947. It was then withdrawn for two months, and re-presented at the Whitehall Theatre on 5th May, 1947. It continued its run at that theatre, and at the Comedy Theatre, for a further 1,745 performances, the third longest run on the London Stage.

Twenty-one plays have secured continuous runs of more than 1,000 performances; "Chu-Chin-Chow," 2,238 times; "Blithe Spirit," 1,997 times; "Worm's Eye View," (revival), 1,745 times; "Me and My Girl," 1,646 times; "Together Again," 1,566 times; "Oklahoma!" 1,544 times; "Charley's Aunt," 1,466 times; "The Beggar's Opera" (revival), 1,463 times; "Our Boys," 1,362 times; "The Maid of the Mountains," 1,352 times; "Arsenic and Old Lace," 1,337 times; "The Farmer's Wife," 1,329 times; "Annie Get Your Gun," 1,304 times; "A Little Bit of Fluff," 1,241 times; "While the Sun Shines," 1,154 times; "A Chinese Honeymoon," 1,075 times; "Quiet Week-End," 1,059 times; "Romance," 1,049 times; "French Without Tears," 1,039 times; "Perchance to Dream," 1,022 times; "The Wind and the Rain," 1,001 times.

During the period of the 1914-18 Great War, no fewer than four productions were able to record more than one thousand performances, while during the second World War, 1939-45, three more were added to the list. Plays produced since 1945, have added a further five to these record runs.

Mr. Terence Rattigan is the only dramatist ever to have written two plays which have each passed a thousand consecutive performances, "French Without Tears," 1,039 times, and "While the Sun Shines," 1,154 times.

Next in length of run to these four-figure records, come "Is Your Honeymoon Really Necessary?", 980; "The Dancing Years," (revival), 969; "Traveller's Joy," 954; "Happy and Glorious," 938; "Dorothy," 931; "Bless the Bride," 886; "Folies Bergère Revue," 881; "Ten Minute Alibi," 878; "Sweeter and Lower," 870; "Paddy the Next Best Thing," 867; "The Shop at Sly Corner," 863; "Rose-Marie," 851; "King's Rhapsody," 839; "Whiteoaks," 827; "While Parents Sleep," 826; "White Cargo," 821; "The Better 'Ole," 811; "The Arcadians," 809; "The Boy," 801.

Twenty-one pieces have secured a run of more than 700 performances: "George and Margaret," 799; "Sweetest and Lowest," 791; "Anthony and Anna," 789 "Edward, My Son," 787; "The Private Secretary," 785; "The Merry Widow," 778; "Piccadilly Hayride," 778; "San Toy," 768; "The Geisha," 760; "The Lilac Domino," 747; "No Medals," 740; "Tons of Money," 737; "A Country Girl," 729; "Joy Bells," 723; "Private Lives," (revival) 716; "Seven Days Leave," 711; "Peg O' My Heart," 710; "The Man Who Came to Dinner," 709; "Les Cloches de Corneville," 705; "Off the Record," 702; "H.M.S. Pinafore," 700.

More than forty pieces have more than 600 performances to their credit and more than sixty have reached the 500 mark. For convenient reference, I append herewith the list of all plays which have secured a run of 500 consecutive performances and upwards on the London Stage—

Chronological List of

SHAKESPEARE'S PLAYS PRODUCED AT THE OLD VIC.

Under the Management of Lilian Baylis

In view of the fact that the Old Vic. was the first theatre in the world to have produced the whole of the plays contained in the First Folio, it may be of interest to note the dates on which the plays were given for the first time under Miss Baylis's management. "Pericles" is also included, though this play does not appear in the folio.

"Hamlet" of the second quarto, in its entirety, was also played frequently from 1916.

When the Old Vic. in Waterloo Road was bombed in May, 1940, the Company established temporary headquarters at the Victoria Theatre, Burnley. Many provincial tours were then undertaken, with Seasons at the Playhouse, Liverpool, and the New Theatre, St. Martin's Lane.

From August, 1944 to May, 1950, the Old Vic. was domiciled at the New Theatre, for a regular Season each year, and the repertory idea was re-introduced. Plays by authors other than Shakespeare were more frequently performed, and Sir Ralph Richardson, Sir Laurence Olivier, and Mr. John Burrell were appointed as the first Directors.

The following plays were then presented at the New Theatre—

31 Aug., 1944	"Peer Gynt"	Ibsen
5 Sept., 1944	"Arms and the Man"	Shaw
13 Sept., 1944	"Richard III"	Shakespeare
16 Jan., 1945	"Uncle Vanya"	Chekhov
26 Sept., 1945	"Henry IV" (part 1)	Shakespeare
3 Oct., 1945	"Henry IV" (part 2)	Shakespeare
18 Oct., 1945	"Oedipus Rex"	Sophocles
18 Oct., 1945	"The Critic"	Sheridan
24 Sept., 1946	"King Lear"	Shakespeare
1 Oct., 1946	"An Inspector Calls"	Priestley
24 Oct., 1946	"Cyrano de Bergerac"	Rostand
14 Jan., 1947	"The Alchemist"	Jonson
23 April, 1947	"Richard II"	Shakespeare
4 Nov., 1947	"The Taming of the Shrew"	Shakespeare
3 Dec., 1947	"Saint Joan"	Shaw
3 Feb., 1948	"The Government Inspector"	Gogol
31 Mar., 1948	"Coriolanus"	Shakespeare
19 Sept., 1948	"Twelfth Night"	Shakespeare
21 Oct., 1948	"The Way of the World"	Congreve
7 Nov., 1948	"Dr. Faustus"	Marlowe
25 Nov., 1948	"The Cherry Orchard"	Chekhov
20 Jan., 1949	"The School for Scandal"	Sheridan
10 Feb., 1949	"Antigone"	Anouilh
10 Feb., 1949	"The Proposal"	Chekhov
11 Oct., 1949	"Love's Labour's Lost"	Shakespeare
18 Oct., 1949	"She Stoops to Conquer"	Goldsmith
30 Nov., 1949	"A Month in the Country"	Turgenev
17 Jan., 1950	"The Miser"	Molière
2 Feb., 1950	"Hamlet"	Shakespeare

The Company returned to its old home in Waterloo Road, 14 November, 1950, opening with "Twelfth Night."

THE MALVERN FESTIVAL

The Malvern Festival (of Drama) was held at the Worcestershire health resort each summer from 1929 to 1939. It was founded by Sir Barry Jackson and Roy Limbert; and on the former's retirement, in 1938, control was assumed by the latter, who nominated Sir Cedric Hardwicke as an associate director. Owing to the War, the Festival was discontinued from 1939 to 1948. Revived in 1949, it did not prove as successful as formerly, and after the conclusion of the season, it was announced that the annual Festival would have to be abandoned.

During the twelve years that it flourished, nearly seventy plays by some forty-odd authors were presented; twenty-one of which were written by Bernard Shaw, to whom, as from 1938, the Festival was dedicated "for all time." Of these, "Geneva," "In Good King Charles's Golden Days," and "On the Rocks," were produced for the first time on any stage.

"The Apple Cart," "The Simpleton of the Unexpected Isles," "Too True to be Good" and "Buoyant Billions," were also seen here for the first time in England. Other important plays originally produced at Malvern were "The Barretts of Wimpole Street" (Rudolf Besier), "Jane Eyre," (Helen Jerome), "Music at Night" (J. B. Priestley), and "A Sleeping Clergyman" (James Bridie).

Several notable old plays were also revived from time to time, and generally speaking, most of the productions were on a very high artistic level.

COMMAND PERFORMANCES

THE first private Command Performance was given at Windsor Castle by direction of Queen Victoria, on 28 Dec., 1848. The play on that occasion was "The Merchant of Venice," and in the cast were included Mr. and Mrs. Charles Kean, Mr. and Mrs. Keeley, Mr. Henry Howe, Mr. Leigh Murray, and Mr. Alfred Wigan. Thereafter, frequent performances were given until the lamented death of the Prince Consort in Dec., 1861. Benjamin Webster, Charles Kean, and Samuel Phelps were at various times responsible for the plays produced, and occasionally the pieces presented were played by practically "star" casts, drawn from the principal London theatres. From 1861 to 1881 no "Commands" were given, but appended is a complete list of the

KING GEORGE'S PENSION FUND FOR ACTORS AND ACTRESSES

THE Great "Gala" performance, given at His Majesty's Theatre by the theatrical profession, on 27 June, 1911, in celebration of the Coronation of His Majesty King George V, realised a net profit of £4,628. With the gracious assent of His Majesty, this sum was deposited to form the nucleus of a Pension Fund for aged Actors and Actresses.

In 1913 it was decided to give an annual performance, with an "all-star" cast, in aid of the fund, and the first performance given was at the St. James's Theatre, on 27 June, 1913, when the play performed was Dion Boucicault's old comedy, "London Assurance." The profit accruing from this performance (inclusive of donations) was £1,112 2s. 6d.

The 1914 performance was given at His Majesty's Theatre on 22 May, 1914, and the play chosen was "The Silver King," by Henry Herman and Henry Arthur Jones. The proceeds of this performance (inclusive of donations) amounted to £1,241 16s.

The 1915 performance was likewise given at His Majesty's Theatre, on 5 July, 1915, when Shakespeare's "King Henry VIII" was revived. The profit realized (inclusive of donations) was £661 1s.

The 1916 performance was given at the London Opera House on 23 June, 1916, when J. M. Barrie's play "The Admirable Crichton" was presented. The profits of the performance (inclusive of donations) realised £1,840 19s. 2d.

The 1917 performance was given at His Majesty's Theatre, on 14 Dec., 1917, when F. Anstey's comedy, "The Man from Blankley's," was revived. The proceeds (inclusive of donations) amounted to £422 11s. 4d.

The 1918 performance was also given at His Majesty's Theatre, on 17 Dec., 1918, when the second act of "Masks and Faces," scenes from "Macbeth," and Cecil Clay's "A Pantomime Rehearsal" were performed.

The profits of the performance (inclusive of donations) realized £2,032 1s. 9d.

There were no performances during 1919 and 1920.

The 1921 performance was given at the Palace Theatre, on 19 Dec., 1921, and the programme on this occasion was composed of "Trilby," adapted by Paul M. Potter from George Du Maurier's book of the same name, and Sir J. M. Barrie's "Shall We Join the Ladies?" (Act I).

The profits of the performance (inclusive of donations) amounted to £1,731, 18s. 8d.

The next performance was given at His Majesty's Theatre, on 26th Feb., 1923, when "The Ballad Monger," "Half-an-Hour," and "Offenbach Follies," were given. The profits of the performance (inclusive of donations) amounted to £1,044 7s. 7d.

The 1924 performance was given at the Adelphi Theatre, on 2nd June, 1924, when Mr. George Pleydell's drama, "The Ware Case," was revived. The profits on this occasion (inclusive of donations) amounted to £1,408 9s. 2d. The 1925 performance was likewise given at the Adelphi Theatre, on 11 May, 1925, the play on this occasion being Mr. Edward Knoblock's episodic play "My Lady's Dress." The profits of the performance (inclusive of donations) amounted to £1,172 0s. 11d.

There was no performance during 1926.

The 1927 performance was given at Drury Lane Theatre, on 23rd May, 1927, and on this occasion Mr. E. Temple Thurston's romantic play, "The Wandering Jew," was revived. The profits of the performance (inclusive of donations) amounted to £1,780 13s. 8d. Viscount Rothermere also sent a donation of £5,000.

The 1928 performance was given at the Palace Theatre, on 14 May, 1928, when Orczy-Barstow's romantic play, "The Scarlet Pimpernel," was revived. The profits of the performance (inclusive of donations) amounted to £2,077 2s. 4d., and Viscount Rothermere sent a further donation of £5,000 to Miss Julia Neilson and Mr. Fred Terry for the benefit of the Fund.

There was no performance in 1929, owing to the King's illness, but in July, Viscount Rothermere gave to the Fund, as a thank-offering for His Majesty's recovery, the sum of £10,000.

The 1930 performance was given at the Haymarket Theatre, on 19 May, 1930, when "Hamlet" was revived. The profits of the performance (inclusive of donations) amounted to £1,502 6s. 8d.

There was no performance in 1931.

The 1932 performance was given at the Adelphi Theatre, on 8 Nov., 1932, when "Sapper's" play, "Bull-Dog Drummond," was revived. The profits of the performance (inclusive of donations) amounted to £1,555 19s. 4d.

The 1933 performance was given at Drury Lane Theatre, on 11 Dec., 1933, when "Green Room Plays" were presented. The profits of the performance (inclusive of donations) amounted to £2,106 19s. 1d.

The 1934 performance was given at the Adelphi Theatre, on 17 Dec., 1934, when Sir Seymour Hicks's and Cecil Raleigh's sporting drama, "The Winning Post" (a revised version of "Sporting Life") was presented. The profits of the performance (inclusive of donations) amounted to £1,996 19s. 4d.

There was no performance in 1935, owing to the death of H.R.H. the Princess Victoria. The performance had been arranged, but had to be cancelled.

There was no performance in 1936, owing to the Royal mourning for King George V.

The 1937 performance was given at the Winter Garden Theatre, on 16 Dec., 1937, when "From Queen Elizabeth to Elizabeth the Queen," an entertainment devised by Sir Seymour Hicks and Edward Knoblock and a miscellaneous programme were given. The profits of the performance, including the sums received in respect of the postponed matinée in 1935, amounted to £3,603 12s. 11d.

There was no performance in 1938, but a performance was given at the Coliseum, 27 Mar., 1939, when a revised version of Louis N. Parker's historical drama, "Drake," was performed, together with a miscellaneous programme.

The profits of the performance (inclusive of donations) amounted to £2,398 5s. 11d.

No performances were given during the War (1939–45), but in 1946, three performances were given: at the London Hippodrome, 8 Apr., 1946, when Mr. Ivor Novello's musical play, "Perchance to Dream," was performed with a specially augmented cast, when H.M. Queen Mary was present; at the New Theatre, 10 Apr., 1946, when the Old Vic company presented "Oedipus Rex," and "The Critic," which was attended by Princess Elizabeth, and at the Haymarket, 11 Apr., 1946, when "The Importance of Being Earnest," was presented, with an "all-star" cast, and which was attended by The King and Queen and Princesses Elizabeth and Margaret. The profits of the three performances amounted to £5,754.

No performance was given in 1947. In 1948, no performance was given in a theatre, but the King and Queen, accompanied by Princess Elizabeth, the Duke of Edinburgh and Princess Margaret attended the first showing of Sir Laurence Olivier's film, "Hamlet," at the Odeon Cinema, Leicester Square, and a sum of £9,000 was realized.

A performance of "Richard III," which was attended by the Queen, was given at the New Theatre by the Old Vic Company, on 17 May, 1949, when the proceeds amounted to £1,163 2s. 3d.

In 1950, the King and Queen attended the first showing of the film "Odette" at the Plaza Cinema, Lower Regent Street, when the sum of £10,125 7s. 1d. was realized.

The President of the Fund is The Right Hon. the Earl of Cromer, P.C., G.C.B., G.C.I.E., G.C.V.O. The Trustees are The Right Hon. the Earl of Cromer, Sir Ralph Richardson, and Mr. Archibald Batty, M.V.O., O.B.E.

The Hon. Secretary is Mr. Stanley J. Passmore, 8 Bolton Street, Piccadilly, W.1; the Hon. Treasurer Mr. R. H. Shipley, Broadmead House, Panton Street, Haymarket, S.W.1; the Hon. Solicitors Messrs. J. D. Langton & Passmore, 8 Bolton Street, Piccadilly, W.1.; the Hon. Auditors, Messrs. Price, Waterhouse & Co.

During 1950 there were 21 annuitants, receiving pensions of from £150 to £200. Since the inception of the fund, sixty-seven persons have received annuities. The administrative expenses are practically nil, having averaged under £6 per annum.

LONG RUNS ON THE NEW YORK STAGE

BY JOHN PARKER

THE New York Stage is just two hundred years old, dating back, according to the most reliable authorities, to the year 1750.

In March of that year, a company from Philadelphia appeared at the theatre in Nassau Street, in "Richard III." That, it may be assumed, was the beginning of the regular Theatre in New York City, which at that period had a population of only 10,000.

In the early days there were, naturally, but very few theatres, and these mainly relied on the presentation of the old English Classics, together with a few "apropos" pieces based on current events. Of course, a few original plays were produced, the first of these being entitled "The Contrast," written by Chief Justice Royall Tyler and presented for the first time at the old John Street Theatre on 16 Apr., 1787.

Gradually a number of more modern plays from London made their way to the New York stage, when some of the more prominent English players crossed the Atlantic, bringing, perhaps, a notable new play with them. Several of these plays remained to be added to the various repertories.

The number of New York Theatres, as I have said, was very small in those days, and prior to 1850 there were not more than four metropolitan houses, so that long runs were not really practical.

The first play to secure a run of a hundred consecutive performances was the old "temperance" drama, entitled "The Drunkard," written by "W. H. Smith and a Gentleman," originally produced at the Boston Museum, 12 Feb., 1844, over a hundred years ago. It ran 140 times. In 1850, after a few performances in New York by the Bowery Theatre Company, the great P. T. Barnum brought the play to his New York theatre, Barnum's Museum, on 17 June, 1850, where it proved to be such a great success that it secured a run of no fewer than 198 performances.

This old play also holds the World's record for a long run. Revived at the Theatre Mart, Los Angeles, on 6 July, 1933, it was still running at that theatre on 5 July, 1950, having completed seventeen years continuous run, with a total to that date of 6,346 performances. The play had also had a long run in San Francisco of five years continuously. It was also revived at the American Music Hall, New York, on 10 Mar., 1934, when it secured a run of 277 performances.

Since the first production of "The Drunkard" in New York, close on 2,000 pieces have passed the century mark of continuous performances. One of the earliest plays to secure a long run was the ever-green "Uncle Tom's Cabin," produced at the National Theatre on 18 July, 1853, which ran for 230 successive performances until 15 Apr., 1854.

The first play to run for 500 successive performances was the musical play "Adonis," written by William F. Gill and Henry E. Dixey, produced at the Bijou Theatre on 4 Sept., 1884, which was to make Dixey world-famous.

The first to pass the thousand mark was "Lightnin'" by Winchell Smith and Frank Bacon, produced at the Gaiety on 26 Aug., 1918, and the first to reach two thousand consecutive performances was "Abie's Irish Rose," by Anne Nichols, first seen at the Fulton on 23 May, 1922.

The longest New York run on record was achieved by "Life With Father." by Howard Lindsay and Russel Crouse, produced at the Empire, 8 Nov., 1939. The play was performed 3,213 times consecutively. "Tobacco Road," produced at the Masque Theatre on 4 Dec., 1933, has the next longest run of 3,182 performances, and held the record until 1947, when it was surpassed by "Life With Father." "Abie's Irish Rose" comes next, played 2,327 times, followed by "Oklahoma!," with 2,248. Other plays which have registered more than 1,000 consecutive performances are, "Harvey," 1,775; "Born Yesterday," 1,642; "Arsenic and Old Lace," 1,444; "Hellzapoppin," 1,404; "Angel Street," 1,295; "Lightnin'," 1,291; "Mister Roberts," 1,157; "Annie Get Your Gun," 1,147; "Pins and Needles," 1,108; "Kiss Me Kate," 1,077.

It should also be noted that "The Voice of the Turtle," played for three Seasons, with two breaks, each of two months, with runs of 230, 349 and 979 times, or 1,558 in all. The "Mister Roberts" run was also broken for two short periods.

"Anna Lucasta" was played 957 times, and "Kiss and Tell," 955. Ten plays have been given more than 800 times, fifteen have passed the 700 mark, twenty-two have exceeded 600, and close on forty have reached or exceeded 500 consecutive performances.

The wide differences which will be noted in many cases between the figures given here, and those of the authorities cited below, are due to the fact that in a number of instances these authorities give the cumulative number of performances of a play, instead of the number of consecutive performances only; while, in others, the figures seemed to have been reached by adding the number of performances of a resumed run to the original production, after a seasonal recess of some weeks, and sometimes even months.

It would also appear, in other cases, that resort has been made to the simple expedient of taking the number of weeks a play was performed and arbitrarily fixing the number of performances each week as eight, irrespective of the fact that the number of matinée performances given varied considerably with different productions. Pre-Metropolitan performances or try-outs have also, on occasions, been added to swell the total of performances advertised.

I have spent many months in counting and checking the various runs recorded, but as nearly all the authorities I have consulted differed very considerably in the figures, it is quite impossible to claim that the list is completely accurate. In hundreds of instances I have had no alternative but to check the runs by reference to the files of the contemporary newspapers, a really formidable task. Nevertheless, it is the only comprehensive list of its kind in connection with the New York Stage which has yet been published.

Among the authorities consulted were the History of the New York Stage (Allston Brown); Annals of the New York Stage (Odell); Best Plays (1899–1950, by Burns Mantle, John Chapman and Garrison P. Sherwood); N.Y. Dramatic Mirror; N.Y. Dramatic News; Theatre Magazine; The Billboard; N.Y. Clipper; New York Telegraph; New York Herald; Herald-Tribune; Theatre World and Variety.

For convenient reference I append a list of all the plays which have secured a run of 500 consecutive performances and upwards on the New York Stage.

PRESS OPINIONS

PRESS OPINIONS

A SELECTION FROM MANY EXCELLENT PRESS OPINIONS OF PREVIOUS ISSUES—

THE TIMES says—

In "Who's Who in the Theatre" Mr. John Parker is carrying out the good work which David Erskine Baker began with his "Companion to the Playhouse" in 1764. Mr. Parker gives the more important facts in regard to several hundred players, dramatists, critics, Continental as well as English and American.

This useful guide to the theatre has grown enormously since it was first issued.

"Who's Who in the Theatre" is a tribute to the courage as well as the industry of Mr. John Parker, it is a work of reference which is as accurate as it is comprehensive.

THE DAILY TELEGRAPH says—

The value of "Who's Who in the Theatre" to all interested in stage work of any description increases with every fresh edition. Mr. John Parker's compilation, in short, is no longer a luxury; it has become a positive necessity. The new edition bears ample testimony to his untiring industry. Taken altogether it would be difficult to exaggerate the value of the volume. To all interested in the theatre, and particularly to those whose business is concerned with theatrical events, past and present, the volume is simply invaluable. What it has cost Mr. John Parker, the compiler, in patience, industry, and research none but he knows; the result is a work in regard to which the use of the word "monumental" can hardly be considered exaggerated. It is not alone the extent of ground which it covers that calls for commendation. Even more praiseworthy are the care and unremitting attention displayed in the pursuit of accuracy. To assert that it is without spot or blemish would be tantamount to declaring that Mr. Parker is more than human. But in a long experience of the theatrical "Who's Who" I have never discovered a mistake in any of the references. The book has long been known as the most useful work of its kind, and altogether invaluable as a comprehensive storehouse of facts relating to the theatre. This volume stands absolutely alone in its genre for the scope, the interest, and the accuracy of its varied information; there is no other work of reference dealing with matters of the theatre that even attempts to cover the same ground. The whole volume is a masterpiece of painstaking and enlightened research, an encyclopaedia of stage lore that is indispensable to everybody in the theatre; it is a mine of information about the British Theatre, past and present.

For actors, managers and everybody connected with the stage the reappearance of "Who's Who in the Theatre" is an event.

THE DAILY MAIL says—

That remarkable compilation "Who's Who in the Theatre" has just been republished in a new edition. An invaluable work of reference. Contains not only condensed biographies of well-known actors, managers, critics, composers, and dramatists, but also an obituary which contains the names of nearly all the leading actors of the past.

"Who's Who in the Theatre" is not only a most complete biographical record of the stage, but is also a wonderful store of facts of incalculable value to every one interested in theatres and in those who write for them, act in them, and manage them.

"Who's Who in the Theatre" is undoubtedly the best and most useful directory of the stage ever compiled.

THE DAILY EXPRESS says—

. . . . . one that every student of the stage will require on his bookshelves.

"Who's Who in the Theatre" fully deserves the praise bestowed on it.

Mr. John Parker, the editor, has brought this indispensable volume down to date. The biographies are remarkably full and complete, the appendices are a mine of information, and the book continues to be prodigiously reliable and amazingly accurate.

THE DAILY HERALD says—

Mr. John Parker's monumental work, the very fountain-head of knowledge, contains a wealth of information as fascinating as it is valuable. It is unchallenged as the authoritative reference book for anyone interested in the Drama. A storehouse of varied information.

THE DAILY GRAPHIC says—

Of all reference books none has quite such friendly intimacy embedded so firmly in massed facts as "Who's Who in the Theatre."

To theatrical folk it is quite indispensable. In addition to the thousands of biographies, it contains more details about the theatre generally than any book that has ever been issued, and is easily the most comprehensive as well as the most fascinating reference book. It is a model of accuracy and conciseness. I commend it to every playgoer.

THE NEWS CHRONICLE says—

Thanks to Mr. John Parker's indefatigable labours and excellent judgment, this indispensable record of the life of the contemporary stage has now developed into a work of reference that in itself helps to give a dignity to its subject. The book is a mine of information, and in its new and enlarged edition is indispensable to those interested in the stage.

THE EVENING NEWS says—

Mr. John Parker's amazing volume, "Who's Who in the Theatre," contains everything anybody could want to know about the stage and stage folk. For those who have business in this country or America the book is invaluable.

THE EVENING STANDARD says—

Mr. John Parker has just published a new edition of his invaluable theatrical guide, "Who's Who in the Theatre." It is quite the Bradshaw of the stage, and should be on ever playgoer's shelf.

Though his previous editions "Who's Who in the Theatre" wer as remarkable for extent as for accu racy, Mr. John Parker has not bee content to rest on his laurels. He h not only brought his swarms of fac up to date, but the volume contai much more than personal particular Such information as is given abou West End theatres and plays must b a great source of comfort to even th most infallible memories.

It is even more valuable than i predecessors. The mass of informatic it contains is well arranged and ma vellously accurate. The research th must have entailed is obvious, an one looks in vain for inaccuracies.

. . . I shall give no statistics abou this book; I shall content myself b saying that it is one of the mo fascinating ever published; that it most artistically and acceptably pr duced; and that my only regret that its immense bulk prevents m from carrying it about with me ever where I go.

THE STAR says—

A volume which has well been calle the Bradshaw of the Stage. It is mine of information about the stag and its personalities. It is a monume of facts, skilfully collated, and a indispensable handbook for all wh are interested in the theatre.

There is probably no more remar able reference book in existence, new edition of which has just a peared. It is remarkable not only f its completeness as a guide to stag land—where it is known as "th Actor's Bible"—but because it practically the work of one man, M John Parker. . . . I know of no mo fascinating book of reference than thi

The standard Biographical reco of the contemporary stage.

THE OBSERVER says—

This attractive volume has made i appearance with all the signs of robu success. The biographical portion the work has been extended, and every way the publication is bo interesting and useful.

The book has all the qualities necessary for a work of this character; it is wonderfully up to date, accurate full, and clearly arranged. Every one of any importance in the theatre, on either side of the curtain, is included in the biographies. Mr. Parker has done his work of editing the volume with immense care and skill. There is no book like this one, and it is indispensable to those whose work brings them to the theatre in one way or another.

It is an important record of the British Theatre, which makes fascinating reading.

Nobody has ever impugned the accuracy of this fascinating work, a monument of the practical love of the theatre of its compiler and editor Mr. John Parker, whose devotion is matched by his perspicacity. To look into it for a reference is to be tempted to spend the rest of the day there.

Unchallenged as the authoritative reference book for anyone interested in the drama.

THE PEOPLE says—

The volume has grown with the passage of years, and has now attained to quite bulky proportions. It is, indeed, a work of much knowledge and labour, and could not be in safer hands than Mr. Parker's. Such a work has entailed vast research and endless patience, but the result adequately repays all the labour expended upon it. No student of the drama can afford to be without it. Not only is it a biographical dictionary of all the more notable personages connected with the stage, it contains many other features incidental thereto. It is, indeed, an invaluable work for all whose business or pleasure takes them into the dramatic world.

SUNDAY DISPATCH says—

The best British textbook on any branch of the entertainment world has just been reissued after being brought up to date. I refer to John Parker's "Who's Who in the Theatre," a piece of compilation amazing in its scope and accuracy. Parker's work has the accuracy and restraint of the encyclopaedia.

THE SUNDAY TIMES says—

"Who's Who in the Theatre" makes a welcome reappearance. As in the past issues, the work is a mine of information in regard to the contemporary stage. It is a formidable "compilation of theatrical biographies." It includes particulars of the lives not only of prominent folk on the contemporary stage, but references to managers, dramatists, and others whose work has been of value to the dramatic world of to-day. Mr. John Parker staggers one with his industry. His accuracy and care are comparable to those of a chartered accountant. In vain does the present reviewer search for any word to do justice to the 2000 crowded pages of the present volume.

Mr. Parker may be said to have heaped his own Pelion upon his own Ossa. As a compilation the book is a monument of thoroughness. In so far as we have been able to check the information given here the book is a monument of accuracy as well as industry.

"Who's Who in the Theatre" is really a marvellous book. One can think of few, if any, questions which may not be solved immediately by referring to its well tabulated contents. Readers with time to spare will spend delightful and rewarding hours browsing among its pages.

THE UNIVERSE says—

There is no need to recommend "Who's Who in the Theatre." One might as well recommend time-tables to travellers.

John Parker's "Who's Who in the Theatre" is quite the most authoritative and comprehensive book on its subject obtainable anywhere. A remarkably detailed book of reference which is invaluable to those who are associated with the theatre, a mine of necessary information.

It has nearly 2000 pages packed with everything you want to know about your favourite actor or actress, as well as the more famous singers, playwrights and other notabilities connected with the screen or stage. The book should be owned by every dramatic society, club, and library. It will probably be an inevitable must for all connected with the theatre.

THE ILLUSTRATED LONDON NEWS says—

. . . . . an excellent book of reference. In olden days The Era, the well-known stage weekly, was called "The Actor's Bible." I wonder what the Profession will invent to immortalize Pitman's publication of Mr. John Parker's "Who's Who in the Theatre"? It is an admirable book, one of those I love to take off my shelves and to flit through with butterfly-wings. It tells tales of achievement; it recalls the tides of many careers; it saves from oblivion a multitude who in their day adorned the boards and have since, in well-earned rest, planted the cabbage of contentment.

It is a book that no one who loves the theatre can afford to be without, and its packed and accurate information is worth its weight in gold.

JOHN O' LONDON'S WEEKLY says—

All those connected with the stage or who are in any way interested in it cannot fail to find this remarkable book an unfailing source of pleasure.

PUNCH says—

Lovers of the drama will rejoice to hear that a new edition of Mr. John Parker's "Who's Who in the Theatre" has been published by Sir Isaac Pitman & Sons . . . An indispensable work of reference, just short of two thousand pages, packed with information, biographical, historical, and genealogical.

NEW STATESMAN AND NATION says—

To all who are actively interested in the stage, "Who's Who in the Theatre" has long been an indispensable work of reference. . . . The playgoer will find the book packed with informative and interesting reading, and they who turn to its pages for some special reference or merely open the book at random, will find they are reading on.

THE SKETCH says—

All who are interested in things dramatic, whether as members of "the profession" themselves, or as playgoers, critics, business people, or whatnot, will give a hearty welcome to the new and enlarged edition of "Who's Who in the Theatre," compiled and edited by Mr. John Parker. "Who's Who in the Theatre" is a thoroughly well arranged work of reference, and one which will be generally welcomed in its new edition. It contains a mine of information on matters theatrical. "Who's Who in the Theatre" is, in fact, a volume which contains information on practically every point in connection with the stage; and the Theatrical Calendar, which is one of its features, is a fascinating study.

The volume is, as ever, a model of accuracy and complete information on the subject of theatrical personalities, notable productions, etc.

RADIO TIMES says—

You may expect to find a tidal wave of new and accurate information about broadcasters of stage fame sweeping through these pages in the next few weeks. We have just received the eighth edition of "Who's Who in the Theatre," the most invaluable book of reference for hasty fact-hunters like us. Ever since we began writing these paragraphs we have leant largely on it for our information.

SUNDAY PICTORIAL says—

A new edition of John Parker's invaluable "Who's Who in the Theatre" has just made its appearance. This has now become one of the classic books of reference—it is the Whitaker, the Wisden, the Debrett of the playhouse. And talking of Debrett, one of the most interesting new features gives a complete list of actresses who have married peers.

THE STAGE says—

If there is a more enthusiastic chronicler of the personnel of the stage than John Parker, one would be interested to know his name. The author of "Who's Who in the Theatre" has need to be an enthusiast, for with each new edition the work increases in extent and complexity. . . . These 3000 odd biographies are, indeed, models of accurate detail, skilfully and clearly condensed. They are almost as interesting to the casual reader as they are invaluable to the practical man of the theatre.

This Tenth Edition contains an increased wealth of information biographical and statistical about the British Theatre.

More than any book we know it has been and still is remarkable for its accuracy of detail. Indeed, every one of its 2014 pages is worth reading.

THE TATLER says—

Everyone with an interest in things theatrical will cordially welcome the appearance of the new edition of Mr. John Parker's amazingly all-inclusive and accurate work, "Who's Who in the Theatre. It is, in fact, safe to say that this unique book, containing as it does a collection of theatrical data as nearly complete as is within human power, is indispensable to any student of the theatre.

THEATRE WORLD says—

A volume which is always assured of a warm welcome from anyone interested in the history and development of the English theatre is "Who's Who in the Theatre," compiled and edited by the indefatigable John Parker. . . . The new edition, just published, is a more amazing and comprehensive affair than ever. . . . The book has developed until it has become the most reliable and complete compilation of facts and statistics relating to the theatre. If there is a more remarkable volume than "Who's Who in the Theatre," I have yet to encounter it. The title suggests a reference book, but how much more than a mere reference book this is.

No praise can be too high for this outstanding work, unfailing in its accuracy and usefulness for all interested in the theatre.

THEATRE MANAGERS' ASSOCIATION JOURNAL (now ENTERTAINMENTS JOURNAL) says—

A new edition has just appeared of this indispensable reference book. Mr. John Parker, the Editor, has done his work of compilation in a most efficient manner. . . . Mr. Parker's monumental work should be in the possession of everybody connected with or interested in the stage. It fully maintains the reputation earned by previous editions for accuracy and comprehensiveness. The volume is the most complete repository of theatrical data in existence. It is an indispensable work of reference which should be on the bookshelf of every Theatre Manager.

It is extremely valuable, up-to-date and indispensable, and should be in the possession of everyone interested in the theatre or activcly engaged therein.

THE JEWISH CHRONICLE says—

Once again under the indefatigable hand of Mr. John Parker, the great theatre reference book makes its welcome appearance and appears in a new edition. In format and appearance it resembles closely the edition of 1933. But once again the ingenious Mr. Parker has bethought himself of new and interesting features, while one is really amazed, having regard to the innate difficulties of compiling data concerning the most scattered of professions and the most temperamental of artists, at the completeness of Mr. Parker's magnum opus, the up-to-dateness, its general accuracy, and its systematic arrangement. Of course, for all who are in any way connected with the theatre, this book is quite definitely indispensable.

This stupendous work of 2014 pages is such a mine of information that practically every point in connection with the stage is covered.

The thanks of all who are interested in the theatre are once again due to the Editor of "Who's Who in the Theatre."

THE BIRMINGHAM GAZETTE AND EXPRESS says—

This comprehensive volume is a veritable encyclopaedia of the stage. "Who's Who in the Theatre" is a book no one interested in the stage can afford to do without. An enormous amount of work must have been involved in its publication. As a work of reference in its own field this book has no peer. It is indispensable for all who are professionally connected with the stage, and full of human interest for those who are not.

THE BIRMINGHAM MAIL says—

No one who has anything to do with the stage can afford to be without "Who's Who in the Theatre," the indispensable handbook compiled by the loving industry of Mr. John Parker. For it is a storehouse of information, which cannot be found elsewhere.

THE BIRMINGHAM POST says—

. . . We congratulate Mr. Parker warmly on the production of a book of reference which should have—and will have—a long and prosperous run. There is very little of interest which has escaped Mr. Parker. The volume is most interesting for casual reading by lovers of the theatre, and as a book of reference it is indispensable. To say that a work of reference is indispensable is to pay a hackneyed compliment, but in the case of Mr. John Parker's dramatic list, the statement is indispensable, for nowhere is there so much matter about the theatre bound in one volume.

But outside the "Who's Who," the three thousand theatrical biographies, is what may be called the "What's What," the several interesting features which must have taken a vast amount of trouble to compile, the records of long runs, the genealogical tables, the digest of playbills . . . the general obituary of distinguished people of the theatre. and so on. I have derived consolation and entertainment from a leisurely and systematic perusal of "Who's Who in the Theatre." A book of reference which is a model of its kind in accuracy, conciseness and comprehensiveness. Mr. Parker is a theatrical benefactor of a rare order.

Each succeeding edition of this invaluable book enhances Mr. Parker's reputation for industry and accuracy. This is now the perfect prompt book to the modern theatre.

THE LIVERPOOL POST says—

Of the 3000 biographies, 500 appear for the first time, and all the biographies are marked by a completeness tha makes them invaluable for referenc purposes.

THE MANCHESTER CITY NEW says—

A nice fat volume, attractivel bound in royal blue with gold letterin and containing over 2000 pages. It i in fact no less than another editio of "Who's Who in the Theatre. Unanimously it is acknowledged to b the most comprehensive work on thi subject. The more you turn over th pages of "Who's Who" the more you interest in the stage and its follower grows. It contains in fact everythin you can possibly want to know abou the stage—past and present.

MANCHESTER DAILY DISPATCH says—

"Who's Who in the Theatre" i specially welcome for it is the most comprehensive and authoritative refer ence work on theatrical matters issue in this country or elsewhere.

THE MANCHESTER EVENING NEWS says—

Ask what question you will abou the English theatre, it will be sur prising if you fail to find an answer i "Who's Who in the Theatre."

THE MANCHESTER GUARDIAN says—

"Who's Who in the Theatre" is gigantic compilation of biographie and statistics, which maintains th high standard of diligence and accurac set by Mr. John Parker, its editor. I is impossible to think of any fact o facet of the theatre which is not deal with in his 2000 pages of biography and chronicle. His passion for th drama apparently turns into a unfailing delight what others would regard as terrifying drudgery. W have endeavoured in vain to think o any detail about the personnel o history of contemporary drama which Mr. Parker has omitted.

"Who's Who in the Theatre," o which a new edition is now pub lished, has always been more than a ordinary reference book. No branch of the arts is so fully documented in a volume of the kind as is the theatre in this book, essential to all interested in theatrical progress. There can be little about the theatre in this country which Mr. Parker does not include.

NEWCASTLE EVENING CHRONICLE says—

The most valuable biographical record of the contemporary stage.

THE SHEFFIELD INDEPENDENT says—

Mr. John Parker, a most reliable authority on matters connected with the stage, has discharged the duties of compiler and editor, and has spared no effort to make the volume an epitome of all matters relating to the theatre. We are surprised at its completeness. A marvellous book which people interested in the theatre will simply devour.

SHEFFIELD TELEGRAPH says—

A theatrical work of reference that ever since its first appearance many years ago has held an established and indispensable place in the bookshelves of all concerned with theatrical matters. "Who's Who in the Theatre" is an excellent book to refer to and a most enjoyable book to glance over, better than ever.

The work is a positive gold-mine of information about the theatre, and all that concerns it.

THE YORKSHIRE OBSERVER says—

Many complimentary things have been said of former issues of "Who's Who in the Theatre," and indeed the valuable and comprehensive nature of the information with which the book deals cannot be exaggerated. Mr. John Parker is a most painstaking and sympathetic editor and compiler, and his enthusiasm for the theatre is once again manifest in the pages of this new edition of his invaluable volume. . . . We have said sufficient, perhaps, to demonstrate that the editor and those associated with him in the production of the volume have made it once again a work of reference that is indispensable, and there is no need to pay a tribute again to the well-known accuracy and hard work that have been given to its completion.

THE YORKSHIRE POST says—

"Who's Who in the Theatre," edited by Mr. John Parker is well established among standard reference books. Nowhere else can one find such full biographies of actors and actresses, with chronological lists of the plays in which they have appeared. . . . The new edition appears more thorough and valuable than ever.

The best theatrical directory published. It supplies a want that has been increasingly felt in recent times. There is no other work of reference which can fill its place.

Mr. John Parker has always set himself the highest standards of accuracy in compiling this monumental work, now more monumental than ever.

So far as we have been able to test it, Mr. Parker's accuracy deserves as many marks as his immense and intelligent labour. He sets a standard in biographical books of reference which is unequalled.

The new edition contains 2000 pages of facts touching almost every aspect of theatre life. The volume is a tribute to the painstaking efficiency of its editor.

EDINBURGH DISPATCH says—

The biographies are models of brevity and compression, and consequently, like Jaques, "full of matter." The inclusion of celebrities of the foreign stage is unusual in such publications, and in view of the comparative inaccessibility of the information, all the more valuable in this.

THE EDINBURGH EVENING NEWS says—

The editor, Mr. John Parker, has done his work thoroughly and well, and the result is a storehouse of information which is unique among theatrical reference books.

THE GLASGOW EVENING TIMES says—

Like most works of reference which have established themselves as indispensable, "Who's Who in the Theatre," by John Parker, grows in bulk, as well as in usefulness with the years. This book is a mine of useful information, and a monument of industry and patience.

THE GLASGOW HERALD says—

Mr. John Parker, editor and compiler of "Who's Who in the Theatre," makes no vain claim when he describes the latest volume as the most comprehensive of its kind yet published. This will be found a valuable record to all interested In the theatre, and not least to Shakespearean students, who are furnished here with a unique chronology of the Shakespearean drama.

Some years ago Sir H. Beerbohm Tree described this work as "absolutely pyramidal" as a monument of industry. It is also, in everything connected with theatre and variety hall, a vast repository of business facts and of that personal information which is so attractive to all the human kind. It is a work of indispensable utility to all who are interested in any way in the stage. There is hardly any curiosity with regard to the theatre and theatre-folks, which may not be satisfied from its pages. An immense amount of painstaking work must have been necessary to compile this volume, but the result fully justifies the effort.

THE SCOTSMAN says—

To those who have had occasion to use it in former years, "Who's Who in the Theatre" has proved itself as a most reliable book of reference in matters histrionic. In the edition which is now published, its editor, Mr. John Parker, has increased its usefulness in several ways.

An indispensable manual of reference for playgoers on both sides of the Atlantic and for all classes of students of the recent history of the contemporary drama.

Even in these parsimonious times of paper scarcity, Mr. John Parker's compilation, now in its tenth edition, gains in bulk and comprehensiveness. To the critic who has relied on the information it contains the book has, of course, been indispensable, not only because of its accuracy but because of its unique position in the field which it covers.

THE WEEKLY SCOTSMAN says—

With an up-to-date edition of this invaluable work of reference at our elbow, we can be accurate with ease. Our labour is saved by the prodigious care John Parker takes to gives us the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth about the theatre.

DRAMA says—

The tenth edition of "Who's Who in the Theatre," that invaluable Biographical Record of the Contemporary stage, has just been issued, and is a monument to the industry of its compiler and editor, Mr. John Parker. It contains over 3000 biographies, of which 400 have been added since the previous edition . . . thus supplying a reference book which is indispensable to anyone concerned with or interested in the professional theatre.

CAPE TIMES says—

To all those who have anything to do with the theatre there is no more invaluable reference book than Mr. John Parker's "Who's Who in the Theatre." Mr. Parker deserves an infinite amount of credit for this monumental work.

MELBOURNE ARGUS says—

The volume is an epitome of all matters relating to the theatre.

TORONTO DAILY STAR says—

This work is the only authentic playgoers' guide about drama people in the English language. It omits scarcely anybody of note. No other so exhaustive and reliable a work has yet been undertaken. This work rivals Grove's Dictionary of Music, which takes five large volumes.

THE GLOBE (Toronto) says—

Grateful readers and reviewers everywhere are joining in a chorus of praise for Mr. Parker's amazing industry, accuracy, and far-sighted comprehensiveness. The book is literally indispensable. It is such a delightful volume to browse in, at random, that this reviewer finds difficulty in laying it aside long enough to write about it.

TORONTO SATURDAY NIGHT says—

"Who's Who in the Theatre" is accepted as the standard, authoritative biographical record of the contemporary stage. A credit both to the compiler and the publisher. People who pride themselves on knowing who is who theatrically cannot afford to be without this book.

TORONTO EVENING TELEGRAM says—

Toronto schools have played a large part in the development of international stars. . . . Almost everything of importance connected with the theatre is dealt with in this book, from trade unionism to theatrical Wills. . . . And the list of hereditary theatrical families—80 pages of "family trees," showing how the profession intermarries—would at once tease and delight the editor of Burke's peerage and the staff of the College of Arms.

JOHANNESBURG SUNDAY TIMES says—

There is so much information in "Who's Who in the Theatre," that one scarcely knows where to turn first. It is the biographies which make "Who's Who in the Theatre" the most important work of theatrical reference in existence. No one interested in entertainment, no student of the drama, and no auditor who takes his drama seriously, can afford to be ignorant in the face of this colossal monument to Mr. Parker's industry.

BOSTON SUNDAY GLOBE says—

John Parker's "Who's Who in the Theatre" presents in the new edition, a remarkably exhaustive and convenient handbook of information regarding actors and actresses now before the public.

LOS ANGELES TIMES says—

No other volume devoted to the contemporary theatre contains such an incalculable number of facts and dates.

NEW YORK EVENING POST says—

Mr. Parker's indispensable biographical and statistical compendium of the major figures and events in the English and American theatres is out in a new and enlarged edition. A book without which no theatre library can pretend to completeness.

NEW YORK TIMES says—

That most valuable reference book of the stage—John Parker's "Who's Who in the Theatre"—has just come out in a new edition. . . . All in all, "Who's Who" contains a mine of valuable information—statistical, biographical, and historical.
